

FLUENT ON PAPER

Andrés, 29

he / him · variant language

Can read a contract in English. Rehearses before ordering a coffee.

By the time I have the sentence ready in my head, they have already moved on to something else.

02 Who he is

THE ARCHETYPE

AGE 29	LOCATION Berlin — relocated from Valencia
HOUSEHOLD Lives with his partner	EDUCATION MSc Engineering, taught in Spanish
OCCUPATION Engineer on an English-speaking team	ALREADY TRIED A 400-day vocabulary streak
TRIGGER The daily standup, held in English	ON PAPER C1. Out loud, three-word answers.

He does not have a vocabulary problem and he knows it. What he has never had is a single hour of low-stakes speaking — every app he has tried teaches words and then leaves him to find the reps himself.

The insight: everyone sells vocabulary. Nobody sells reps at speaking.

03 What he wants

GOALS

GOAL 01

Say the whole thought, not the safe version

To sound out loud as capable as he already is on paper.

GOAL 02

Stop translating in his head

Answer at the speed the conversation is actually moving.

GOAL 03

Belong at the lunch table

The work English is fine. It is the small talk that leaves him out.

SUCCESS He tells a story in English at lunch and nobody slows down to wait for him.

04 What hurts

IN HIS WORDS, FROM THE PAGE

01

You translate first

By the time the sentence is ready, they have moved on.

02

So you keep it short

You answer in three words to be safe. You sound like less than you are.

03

So you talk less

Less talking means less practice. The next one is harder.

05 What he thinks before he taps

OBJECTION → ANSWER

HE THINKS	THE PAGE ANSWERS
Will it switch to English when I struggle?	No. She stays in the language you picked. That is the point.
Will it fix my grammar?	It tells you what worked and gives you a better way to say it.
Is the app in Spanish?	The conversation is. The menus are English — say so plainly, he will find out anyway.

06 How he uses it

THE REAL MOMENT

WHEN

Ten minutes before the standup he has to speak in

WHAT HE PICKS

A café in Barcelona. Spanish or English, whichever he is weakest in.

WHAT HE WATCHES

His pauses getting shorter

STEP 01

Pick a language and a place

A café in Barcelona, a beach, a gym.

STEP 02

Talk

Hold the button and speak. She answers in that language.

STEP 03

See your score

Your speed, your pauses, and a better way to say it.

07 Pain, barrier, solution

WHY HE HAS NOT FIXED IT ALREADY

PAIN

Sounding like less than he is, and being quietly filed as less capable because of it.

BARRIER

He already believes he is doing the work — the streak, the vocabulary, the podcasts. The gap between studying a language and speaking one is invisible to him until somebody names it out loud.

SOLUTION

Reps at speaking specifically, in the target language, with a partner who never switches to English to rescue him.

08 The message that lands

WHAT HE RESPONDS TO

Respect first. He is a competent adult being underestimated because his mouth is slower than his mind, and any message that treats him as a learner is dismissed before the second line.

01 You knew the word. You just needed four more seconds.

02 Your English is fine. Your speaking practice is zero.

03 400 days of vocabulary. How many hours of talking?

SAY IT LIKE THIS

Acknowledge the competence in the first line, then name the gap in the second. Concrete numbers work on him. Subtitles always — he may well be watching in his second language.

NEVER SAY

Learn English. Speak like a native. Flags, cartoon owls, beginner framing, or anything that implies he is starting out. He is not a learner, he is a professional being underestimated.

9:16 VERTICAL · 12S · AMBIENT ONLY

GENERATION PROMPT — PASTE INTO SEEDANCE / VEO

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. An office lunch table, five colleagues mid-conversation in warm daylight, easy overlapping laughter. A man in his late twenties sits fractionally back from the group, following every word closely, forming a sentence he never says. Handheld with small natural movement, shallow focus – the group slightly soft, him sharp. Documentary realism, 35mm. Ambient chatter and cutlery, no intelligible dialogue.
