S1

PROBLEM RECOGNITION HOOK

10s · 9:16

You will think of the perfect reply at 1am.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic close-up, 9:16 vertical. A man in his early twenties lies awake in a dark bedroom, the only light a phone screen face-down beside him throwing a faint glow across the ceiling. He stares upward, eyes open, replaying something. Very slow push-in. Muted blue-grey palette, shallow depth of field, 35mm, soft film grain. Still camera, no shake. Room tone only – no music, no speech.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

0.0s (hold on the face — no text)

4.5s You thought of the perfect reply.

7.0s Four hours late.

AUDIO

None. The silence is the point — a voiceover would fill the gap the video is about.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR SAM

He has had this exact night. Recognition beats persuasion for this persona, and the first frame is the moment rather than a claim about it.

S2

CONTRARIAN HOOK

12s · 9:16

You are not bad at talking. You have never practised.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. A house party kitchen, warm low light, four people mid-conversation and laughing. A man in his early twenties stands half a step outside the group holding a drink, following the conversation closely. He opens his mouth to speak, then closes it and looks down at the glass. Handheld with small natural movement, shallow focus – the group slightly soft, him sharp. 35mm, realistic. Party ambience, no intelligible dialogue.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

0.5s You are not bad at this.

3.5s You have just never practised it.

8.0s Nobody does. That is the whole problem.

AUDIO

None. Text carries the reframe; the scene carries the feeling.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR SAM

Denies the belief he holds about himself without telling him to feel differently, which is the instruction he cannot execute.

S3

OPEN LOOP HOOK

12s · 9:16

There is a reason the words come back at 1am.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical, two shots. First: extreme close-up of a man in his early twenties mid-conversation, eyes flicking, the half-second of going blank, warm indoor light. Cut to: the same man alone later on a dark street walking home, mouth moving, saying the sentence perfectly to nobody. Handheld, shallow depth of field, 35mm, filmic grain. Ambient street tone on the second shot, no dialogue.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

1.0s The words were never missing.

5.0s Your attention was doing two jobs.

9.0s One of them was watching you.

AUDIO

None.
