WHEN

Thursday and Friday, 19:00–22:00 — before he goes out, not after.

T1OPEN LOOP HOOK

9s · 9:16

Four minutes after they walk away, you will know what to say.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical, golden hour at a busy beach bar. A man in his mid twenties stands at the edge of a group, drink in hand, watching a conversation he has not joined. He shifts his weight, begins to step forward, hesitates, and stops. Warm amber backlight, handheld with natural movement, shallow depth of field, 35mm, filmic grain. Crowd ambience and a low music bed. No dialogue.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

0.5sThe moment is about four seconds long.

5.0sYou will have the line in four minutes.

AUDIO

None. Music bed only.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR TOM

The gap between the moment and the idea is his whole experience. Naming the timing is more specific than naming the feeling.

T2PATTERN INTERRUPT HOOK

10s · 9:16

Opens on him walking over confidently — then reveals he never moved.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical, festival at dusk, string lights and a crowd. A man in his mid twenties walks with purpose toward a small group, relaxed and open. Mid-step the motion reverses smoothly and he returns to where he began, standing still at the edge holding a drink, exactly as before. One continuous take, handheld, warm practical lighting, 35mm, filmic grain. Crowd ambience and distant music.

0.5sThe version in your head.

5.0sThe version that happened.

8.0sThe gap is practice, not nerve.

AUDIO

None.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR TOM

The reverse is the pattern interrupt — the viewer has to re-read the first three seconds, which is what buys the rest.

T3PROBLEM RECOGNITION HOOK

10s · 9:16

You get one go. Nobody practises the one go.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. A gym between sets, cool overhead light. A man in his mid twenties sits on a bench near someone else resting; there is a clear open moment where either could speak. He glances over, says nothing, puts his headphones back in and looks at his phone. Static tripod with a very slow push-in, 50mm, realistic. Gym ambience – plates, distant treadmill, no dialogue.

1.0sTwenty seconds, once.

5.0sNo second attempt. No feedback.

8.0sEvery other skill gets practice.

AUDIO

None.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR TOM

The gym is the shortest window of the four venues and the easiest to feel. Nothing here is about who the other person is.
