WHEN

Weekday mornings and Sunday evening — before the week, not during it.

A1 DEMONSTRATION HOOK

15s · 9:16

Seven “um”s in three minutes. Now you know.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. A glass-walled meeting room, six people around a pale table in cool daylight. A man in his early thirties presents at the head of the table, speaking quickly and gesturing more than he needs to. Static tripod with a very slow push-in. Clean corporate palette, realistic, 50mm. Muffled speech and room tone, no intelligible dialogue.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

1.0s um

3.0s um · um

6.0s um · um · um · um

9.5s Seven. In three minutes.

12.0s Nobody was ever going to tell you.

AUDIO

None. The counter is the whole idea.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR ARJUN

Only we can run this one honestly — filler density is measured from the recording, not guessed. The counter is the product in one shot.

A2 CONTRARIAN HOOK

12s · 9:16

You did not lose the argument. You lost the room.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. A meeting room in cool daylight. A man in his early thirties is making a point at the head of the table. Slow pan across the faces around him: a phone turned face up, a glance at a laptop, someone looking out of the window, a polite nod with no attention behind it. Static tripod, then a slow horizontal pan, 50mm, clean corporate palette. Muffled speech and room tone.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

1.0s The idea was fine.

5.0s You were 40 words a minute too fast.

9.0s That is a fixable number.

AUDIO

None.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR ARJUN

He does not think he has a people problem. This says the problem is mechanical and measurable, which is the only frame he accepts.

A3 PROBLEM RECOGNITION HOOK

11s · 9:16

Nobody at work will ever tell you how you sound.

SEEDANCE PROMPT — PASTE AS WRITTEN

Cinematic 9:16 vertical. The end of a meeting — people gathering laptops and filing out of a glass-walled room. A man in his early thirties stays at the screen. A colleague pats him on the shoulder on the way past, says something brief and pleasant, and leaves. He is alone in the frame. Handheld, cool daylight, 35mm, realistic. Room tone and receding footsteps.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

1.5s “Good job.”

5.0s Too small to mention.

8.0s Too awkward to raise. So nobody does.

AUDIO

None.

WHY THIS LANDS FOR ARJUN

The polite non-feedback is the exact reason he has never improved. It is a system problem, not a personal failing, and that framing keeps him watching.
